USAMU Shooters Going To Olympics

USAMU PAO

USAMU OLYMPIC SHOOTERS:

Six USAMU Olympians head to Beijing, China August 8-17.

Six Soldiers of the U.S. Army Marksmanship Unit won seven slots on the 2008 U.S. Olympic Shooting Team that will compete at the Olympic Games this summer.

Maj. Michael E. Anti, Sgt. 1st Class Daryl L. Szarenski, Spc. Walton Glenn Eller III, Spc. Jeffrey G. Holguin and Pfc. Vincent C. Hancock each won a spot on the Olympic Team and Sgt. 1st Class Jason A. Parker won two slots. The Soldiers will be competing in Rifle, Pistol and Shotgun events.

The 2008 Olympic Trials for Shotgun were conducted Aug. 8 to 19 in Colorado Springs, Colo., and March 8 to 16 in Kerrville, Texas. During these selection matches, Eller and Holguin each won a slot in Double Trap and Hancock got a slot in Skeet.

International Rifle and Pistol Olympic Selections were held March 1 to 3 in Colorado Springs, Colo., and May 12 to 22 at Fort Benning. Anti was selected for Prone Rifle and Parker won slots in both Air Rifle and Three Position Rifle; Szarenski took a slot in Free Pistol.

Eller beat 13 competitors to make the Olympic Team in Double Trap. A Katy, Texas, native, Eller, 26, also competed in the 2004 and 2000 Olympics. He joined the Army in September 2006. Holguin, 29, from Yorba Linda, Calif., joined the Army in September 2006 along with his friend Eller. Holguin defeated 12 competitors to get on the Double Trap Olympic Team.

In Double Trap, competitors fire their shotguns at two clay targets thrown simultaneously from an underground bunker at speeds up to 50 mph; competitors get one shot per target. "I had the advantage of having already been a member of two Olympic Teams," Eller said. "I also had been training with the three best Double Trap shooters in the country. I was very confident but I was completely nervous the entire time. No matter how much you prepare, it is still nerve-wracking while trying out for the Olympic Team."

Hancock of Eatonton, Ga., joined the Army Reserves in June 2006.

As a junior in high school, he went through Basic Training and then returned to finish his senior year. After he graduated, Hancock went to his advanced individual training and then joined the USAMU.

USAMU Commander's Report

LTC Frank Muggeo

Summer is here again and most people associated with the AMU know what this means, the busiest part of the year has arrived. Very soon it will be a ghost town with the Service teams at Quantico, Camp Perry, CISM and other events while the International teams gear up for the Nationals, World Cups, Camp Perry and CISM. This year is a little different though, it is the "fourth" year, or "THE" year.

The Olympics! Once again the USAMU will represent the USA with the best marksman in the world. The Olympic selection matches finished just weeks ago and the AMU will compete in 7 events this year with 6 Soldiers. SFC Parker from International Rifle qualified in two events, and will be joined by MAJ Anti (IR), SFC Szarenski (IP), SPC Holguin (Shotgun), SPC Eller (Shotgun), and PFC Hancock (Shotgun). Additionally we have two other AMU members going to the Olympics Mr. Glenn Sulser and SFC Weeks. Mr. Sulser will go as the national Gunsmith and SFC Weeks will go as the assistant National Shotgun Coach. SFC Weeks will ETS this fall and it has been announced that he has been selected as the next National Shotgun Coach.

The service teams, coming off a long winter that mainly focused on training Soldiers, with some competitions as well, hit the competition season in earnest now. June has the Interservice Pistol competition taking place at Ft Benning. The competition during all the Interservice matches is always strong, but our guys always end up right in the mix of it. After Interservice, Service Pistol gets ready for Camp Perry. Camp Perry is always a great event, from Service Pistol to Small Bore to Service Rifle, the CMP always runs a professional, top of the line event. Service Rifle, as you know follows a very similar agenda as Service Pistol but Interservice Rifle is held in Quantico. These are some of the most hotly contested events as service pride and bragging rights are on the line. Service Rifle has had a very busy season training at the Drill SGT school and at several Basic Training units, not to count all the MTTs to the rest of the Army. While they would like to have had more training time, they look to be very strong this year. Their ability to successfully switch hats from training to competition is a great testament to the NCO Corps and their personal desire to be the best. The Combat Shooting team is competing in the International Championships this quarter and is fielding a very strong team as well. It looks like a member of the International Pistol team will go with them to round out the team. Combat Shooting and Service Pistol are working together to develop a new Close Quarters Marksmanship course. Service Rifle is also looking to improve on their Squad designated Marksman Course as well. All this means that as soon as they get back from the summer trips- its back to training Soldiers to be better marksman.

He fired with the U.S. Army Pistol Team in 1952-1954 before the formation of the Army Marksmanship Unit. He was one of the first Army pistol shooters to fire a perfect 200 Timed Fire score in competition - a rare feat in that era.

The 19-year-old triumphed over 65 competitors to make the Skeet Olympic Team. In Skeet, competitors fire their shotguns at clay targets thrown from high and low houses at speeds of 55 mph.

"I had an advantage because I was preparing myself for months ahead of time," Hancock said. "I was determined to do the best I could and come out on top. I felt both confident and anxious as I was competing because it was for what I had been dreaming of since I was 12 years old."

Anti, 43, was a 2004 Olympic Silver Medalist as well a 2000 and 1992 Olympian. Anti, who joined the Army in January 1988, is attached to the USAMU through the World Class Athlete Program. The infantry officer, from Winterville, N.C., out shot 48 competitors to make the Olympic Team in Prone Rifle. Competitors in Prone Rifle lie on their stomachs and shoot .22-caliber rifles at targets 50 meters away. The bull's eye is 10.4 millimeters wide, much smaller than a dime.

Parker, 33, is a 2008, 2004 and 2000 Olympian from Omaha, Neb.

He joined the Army in January 1997. Parker defeated 34 competitors to make the Olympic Team in Men's Air Rifle in which competitors shoot lead pellets from .177 caliber guns at targets 10 meters away. The bull's eye is 1/2 millimeter wide, the size of the period at the end of this sentence. Parker also made the Olympic Team in Men's Three-Position Rifle in which competitors shoot the same rifles at the same targets as in Prone Rifle, except they shoot in three positions - standing, kneeling and prone.

Szarenski, 40, also competed in the 2004 and 2000 Olympics in Free Pistol. In Free Pistol, competitors shoot .22-caliber pistols from 50 meters away at bull's eye targets with an approximate 50-mm center. The Saginaw, Mich., native joined the Army in October 1991.

After three days and 200 shots of grueling competition, it came down to the last shot, but Szarenski prevailed to beat 25 competitors and make the Olympic Team. Going into the last two shots, John Zurek of Phoenix, Ariz., was on the verge of upsetting Szarenski. However, Zurek scored 7.8 on his ninth shot in the 10-shot finals while Szarenski finished with 10.7 out of a possible 10.9 on his last shot, leaving Szarenski 1.4 points ahead of Zurek.

The Soldier-athletes are now preparing for their competitions at the upcoming Olympic Games, which will take place in Beijing, China, Aug. 8 to 17.

Not to be left out the Custom Firearms Shop is as busy as ever. In addition to sending Mr. Sulser to the Olympics they have a gunsmith going on the road to all the Service Rifle and Service Pistol matches as well. There are several reasons for this but one of the benefits is that it allows the shop to evaluate the guns they did R&D on during the winter. While the shop has always done R&D on their own and worked with industry, it seems to be even bigger then before. They have projects with Industry, Special Operations, USAIC and others.

Keep an eye out for the team results on our web page at www.usamu.com
